

On December 10, 2011, Russia saw the biggest anti-government protest in Moscow since the 1990s. Tens of thousands of Russians took to the streets to demand a new election. These demonstrations and many other events were filmed by a group of 10 young film directors.

These 10 graduates from Marina Razbezhkina's School of Documentary Film and Documentary Theatre lived with a camera for two months in order to chronicle the last "Russian winter" and its popular uprising against Vladimir Putin's presidential run.

Winter, Go Away!

October 25

6:00 PM

ROOM: 104 SEC

Sponsored by the Russian and World Cultures and Literatures
Programs of the Department of Modern & Classical Languages in collaboration with the Russian Cultural Center
Houston

Russia 2012

FREE – OPEN TO
THE PUBLIC

Director Anna Moiseenko will attend the screening
and discussion of the film

For more information, contact MCL at mcl@central.uh.edu or 713.743.8350